Ritah Nakitto is a mother of three children and all are HIV positive. During her first two pregnancies Nakato was not aware of her condition. It was in 2010 when she was under her third pregnancy, that she found out she was HIV positive. She did not tell her husband because she feared he would leave her and that meant taking care of the children on her own.

As soon as she gave birth, the baby was given a drug to prevent mother child transmission. Unfortunately, Nakato didn't follow the medical officer's advice and she passed the virus on her baby.

She started falling sick. They were always in and out of hospital. This is the time when the doctor discovered, she was positive.

Kyusiza mukaddewo akatundu kono mu luganda asobole okubitegeera. (obogoba 20)
