THE DANGERS OF RELATIONSHIPS

You are too young to contain the stress of love affairs, which you have seen so many times in films and soaps. While these situations in movies are simply acted for entertainment, they are based on what happens in real life.

Very few relationships which start early last until marriage. So you will most likely be used for experimentation and dumped along the way if you indulge too early.

At 18, the law permits you to marry, but you are definitely not ready for that because you need to mature and prepare for your future and that of your children to come. You will do this by investing in education, and business. You, will be respected and treated differently if you get into a relationship when you are self-sufficient, self sustaining and independent.
